Everything I've built, run and delivered since joining NACK Apparel in October 2026.

Prepared for
The NACK team

NACK APPAREL

One month in.

Role Review

(Oct–Nov 2026)

Daniel Mgbolu

Three weeks of ads. ₦5.65M in website sales.

₦5.65M
Website sales, 19 Oct – 8 Nov

27
Orders, 50 pieces sold

₦209K
Average order value

3.0x
Return on sales-ad spend

₦838,850
From one store-credit email

106
Product photos re-styled for ads

Five weeks, five layers of work.

12–18 Oct

Strategy

Social media strategy deck: brand identity, platforms, 50/50 UGC, four content stages, in-house creator, building a cult following.

19–25 Oct

Launch

New Meta ad structure live. Snapchat and TikTok ad accounts opened. ₦2M ad plan. NACK Edit agreed. Shopify fixes. First weekly report.

26 Oct–1 Nov

Retention

₦52K store-credit email to 2,704 customers (36.2% open). Code fix and follow-up. New LXN ad set. Abandoned-checkout flow.

2–8 Nov

Creative at scale

7 product ads. 106 photos re-backgrounded. 9 seamless carousels, 58 slides. Copy for every product. Personal recovery emails from Tolu.

9–12 Nov

Next season

Sharper CAC method. YTD reporting. NACK Edit Issue 01 designed. Black Friday community reward plan. Snap Pixel with purchase tracking.

Steady sales every week since the ads went live.

Week	Sales	Orders	AOV
19–25 Oct	₦1,909,840	9	₦212K
26 Oct–1 Nov	₦2,114,740	9	₦235K
2–8 Nov	₦1,622,900	9	₦180K
Total	₦5,647,480	27	₦209K

Return on sales ads

3.0x

₦1.88M on sales ads brought in ₦5.65M. Measured on sales ads only, so the number is honest.

One email. ₦52K store credit to past customers.

₦838,850

in sales from a campaign I planned, wrote and sent to 2,704 customers.

36.2%
Open rate, well above the usual email benchmark

40%
Of that week's website sales, from 3 orders

₦104K
Credit redeemed, turned into ₦773K of orders

I manage the spend like it’s my own money.

Found the cheapest sales

Retargeting past visitors brought sales at ₦19,160 and ₦36,639 each. I moved budget toward what works.

Turned a loser around

LXN Video went from ₦178,628 a sale to ₦37,660 a sale after I reworked it.

Cut what didn’t sell

Switched off the Catalogue ad and flagged ₦293K on LXN Green with no sales.

Honest measurement

CAC counts sales ads only. Awareness and chat ads are reported separately so we see the real cost.

Wider range selling

LXN went from 70% of sales to about 40% as other products started selling.

New channels ready

Snapchat and TikTok accounts opened. Snap Pixel installed with full purchase tracking.

Ads that look like NACK.

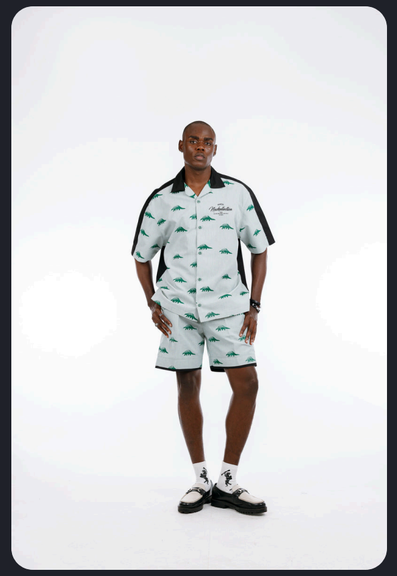

I re-styled the catalogue and built the ads, emails and copy myself, in house.

106 Product photos re-backgrounded

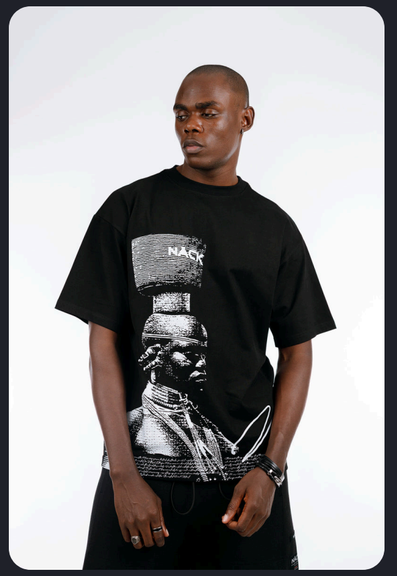

9 Seamless carousels, 58 slides

7 Product ad sets, copy for each

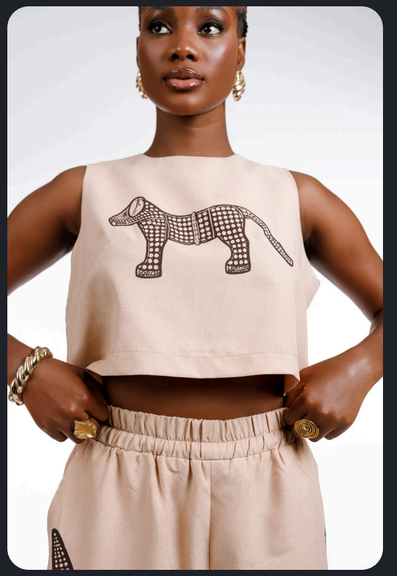

3 Emails designed: NACK Edit, Black Friday, recovery

Pangolin two-piece

Mursi tee, black

Farrko Alase two-piece

One consistent look across every ad.

Same background, figures flowing across slides, no cut-off heads. Built to stop the scroll and feel premium.

Systems that keep paying off.

01 Social media strategy

A full plan for brand identity, platforms, UGC, content stages and building a community around NACK.

02 Weekly reporting

A clear report every Monday: sales, ads, email and CAC. Now with a year-to-date view.

03 Tracking

Snap Pixel live with full purchase tracking, so Snapchat can optimise for sales from day one.

04 Store upkeep

Removed the expired Independence banner and kept product pages clean.

05 Email flows

Abandoned-checkout flow running, plus personal follow-ups when a big cart is left behind.

06 Budget planning

₦2M ad plan across channels, and the ₦500K Snapchat funding request raised.

Every customer gets a real person.

4

Abandoned checkouts followed up personally

Written emails from Tolu, the CEO, to help each customer finish their order.

5

Late orders cleared

Spotted the fulfilment backlog (orders nck1420–1424) and got it moving.

Spam

Checkouts spotted and flagged

Fake checkouts caught so they don’t skew our numbers or our follow-ups.

Where I’m taking it next.

The focus

Bring the cost of each new customer down while we grow orders.

Today a sale costs about ₦69.6K in ads and orders sit at 9 a week. The target is ₦5–10K and more volume. The tracking, creative and reporting I’ve built are what make that possible.

Snapchat launch

Pixel is in; ads go live with purchase tracking.

Cut the waste

Move spend from slow ad sets to retargeting that sells.

NACK Edit + Black Friday

A community reward, up to 50% off selected pieces.

Creators and UGC

Real people wearing NACK, 50/50 with brand content.

Social plan in motion

The strategy deck turned into weekly posting.

Thank you.

One month in, the engine is built. Now we scale it.

Daniel Mgbolu
Marketing, NACK Apparel

NACK APPAREL